

INDIAN ARTS & CRAFTS ASSOCIATION

CODE OF ETHICS

Members of the Indian Arts and Crafts Association, a national association of Indian Craftspeople, traders, dealers, collectors, museums and others concerned with the image and marketing of American Indian arts & crafts, agree to adhere to the following:

To honestly represent American Indian arts and crafts as to nature and origin within the realm of my control and to offer return privileges for articles found by the Indian Arts and Crafts Association to have been misrepresented by me.

To abide by all federal, state, local, and tribal laws pertaining to Indian Arts & Crafts, artifacts, and natural resources,

To abide by ethical business conduct regarding advertising, appraising, pricing, and guarantees offered by me.

To respect and support ethical business activities of all Indian Arts and Crafts Association members.

To encourage consumer confidence in the authenticity of all articles identified with the IACA seal.

To cooperate with the law enforcement agencies and the IACA in the investigation of crimes involving Indian arts and crafts and to promote proper identification of Indian arts and crafts.
